Pro-Worker Congressmen Accept CEI Awards at Ceremony

Labor Policy Analysts Thank Members for Their Work on Labor Issues

Washington, D.C., September 23, 2011---Yesterday, the Competitive Enterprise Institute invited the Members of Congress with the highest scores on the WorkplaceChoice Congressional Labor Scorecard to accept awards at a ceremony on Capitol Hill. Many congressmen accepted the invitation; others couldn't make it, but emailed to thank CEI labor policy analysts for recognizing their hard work to advance workers' rights issues in the House of Representatives.

159 Representatives earned the Pro-Worker Award for scoring 100% Pro-Worker on the Congressional Labor Scorecard calculated by CEI labor policy analysts. (See CEI's earlier press statement on the awards here.)

Labor Policy Counsel Vincent Vernuccio called the event a great success, "It was an honor to present awards to Congressmen who have consistently stood up for workers' rights. We applaud the 159 congressmen who maintained 100 percent pro-worker score thus far during the 112th congress and sincerely appreciate the 25 Representatives who took time out of their busy day to pick up their certificates."
